The Department of Anthropology will be hosting a 2019 Summer field school in the Gila National Forest, NM from May 22nd to June 28th.

This archaeological field school will introduce students to basic excavation techniques, artifact processing, artifact analysis, and teamwork.

For the Duration of the field school, we will be camping at Beaverhead Ranger Station including Sunday through Friday. We will go back to Las Cruces on the weekends, but you are welcome to stay at the station during this time.

There will also be an extended camping field trip at Chaco Canyon National Historical Park in June.

The Field School runs during NMSU’s Summer 1 Session and can be taken for 6 credits in ANTH 388, ANTH 488, or ANTH 522.

Applications are due April 15th!

Contact us:

Jorden Scott (joscott@nmsu.edu) or Dr. Fumi Arakawa (farakawa@nmsu.edu) if you have any further questions.